						* W

* Worldsday, (a civil World Holiday), W or 31 December (365th day), follows 30 December every year.

 Leapyear Day (another civil World Holiday), W or 31 June, follows 30 June in leap years.

In this year of 1950 six months are identical, as the blocked months indicate. They are the first two months through Tuesday, 28 February, and the last four months of the year through Saturday, 30 December. The old 31 December in the present Gregorian calendar that stands singularly isolated on the first day of the week, really belonging to the first week of the new year, is comparable to the new W or 31 December, Worldsday, that lies outside the week yet always within the old year. It is the last day of the old year, the concluding 365th day that bridges the old with the new year. Such a logical calendar arrangement will not occur again for a period of six years.
